PALO ALTO, Calif., Sep 25, 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Xerox Corporation's DocuShare(R) Enterprise Content Management (ECM) Platform -- a Web-based electronic filing system that allows users to store and share information easily -- received "Pick of the Year," "Best" and "Trend Setting" awards from three industry organizations.

Buyers Laboratory Inc. (BLI) named DocuShare 6.0 and DocuShare CPX 6.0 to its "Pick of the Year" awards in the Outstanding Enterprise Content Management Solution category. DocuShare earned the Five Star rating in BLI's evaluation and received high marks for nearly all evaluated criteria, including ease-of-use, simple administration, value and security.

According to BLI: "Noteworthy is the impressive support infrastructure Xerox has put in place for DocuShare, including free online end-user and administrator training, the most comprehensive documentation we've seen for any solution and 24/7 phone support dedicated to the DocuShare offering."

BERTL honored DocuShare with the 2008 "Best ECM Scalable from SMB to Enterprise," a part of the Workflow Solutions and Innovation division of its annual "BERTL's Best" awards. BERTL recognized DocuShare for its overall features and functionality, specifically highlighting its ability to easily upgrade from basic content management systems for smaller companies to more robust applications suited for enterprises.

DocuShare also ranked among KMWorld magazine's "Trend Setting Products of 2008." KMWorld recognized DocuShare for its ability to manage, organize and store data -- a key determinant of success in an era of information overload, where workers struggle to tame the masses of e-mails, paperwork and other content distributed daily.

"Most important to us is that these industry recognitions represent the voice of the customer who values DocuShare for the way it helps manage and share business critical information with ease and affordability," said David Smith, vice president and general manager, Xerox DocuShare Business Unit.

Xerox DocuShare solutions run on one unified technology platform. From basic content management services to more advanced process management functionality, DocuShare allows users to cut through the clutter of paper documents by providing an electronic repository for easy storage and collaboration.
