Silver Spring, MD – February 4, 2009 – The Carl E. Nelson Best Practices Award was established to recognize excellence in the enterprise content management (ECM) field. This award provides an exciting and unique way for end user organizations to share their ECM project implementations with their peers and for ECM solution providers to showcase the ROI that their solutions can achieve.

"Once again the quality of the submissions for the Carl E. Nelson Best Practice Award continues to improve raising the bar on best practices," said John Mancini, President, AIIM. "Our AIIM Emerging Technology Advisory Group (EmTAG), assisted by several of the 2008 award recipients, evaluated and selected the finalists in each category for the Best Practices Award. Our members will be determining the winner in each category. Each of the finalists share many valuable lessons learned to help others with their implementations."

The finalists in each of the three categories of small, medium and large are based upon the user organization size and include:

Small Company Category (1-100 employees)

LungRx and Impact Systems, Inc.
Huntington Internal Medical Group and Panasonic Communications Company
OwnerGUARD Corporation and Xerox Corporation

Medium Company Category (101-1,000 employees)

Cleveland Metropolitan School District and AnyDoc Software & Results Engineering
TCP, Inc. and Hyland Software
City of Kennewick and ImageSource, Inc.

Large Company Category (1,001 + employees)

Dickinson Financial Corporation and Adobe Systems Incorporated
Boston College and FolderWave, Inc. & DataBank
Laboratory Corporation of America and Optical Image Technology, Inc.

The award winners will be announced at the annual AIIM Awards Celebration on Tuesday, March 31, taking place in conjunction with the AIIM International Exposition + Conference (March 30 - April 2, 2009).
